Abstract of the Disclosure

If a failure is detected in a system, it is automatically judged which operation mode should be selected, a system-down mode or a dynamic degeneracy mode. If a failed device is severed from the system, the severance of the device is reported by making a device control unit access the device or changing the state of the device.

5